The present invention relates to a liquid crystal display and, more particularly, to a transreflective liquid crystal display apparatus having a reflection liquid crystal display section, a transmission liquid crystal display section, and a backlight unit which are used in combination. Conventionally, there is known a reflective liquid crystal display apparatus capable of displaying a high quality image using only a small amount of power compared with a transmission liquid crystal display apparatus. The reflective liquid crystal display apparatus has a feature in that it is possible to display an image in high brightness with a sufficient amount of light by reflecting incident light entering in the apparatus by a reflector.
