Moreover, diving into the properties screen of all the points you can enable tweaks regarding curvature, point locking or set the point distribution. DJ Peep : OSX Professional Audio Mixer Compact, and sturdy all-in-one software that can come in handy for today's DJs. It's a bit limited, and I would recommend Logic Pro X, Cubase or Acid Pro but I was looking for something simple because of the limited features, so this software was a no-brainer. I haven't heard anyone mention the program before, but I purchased this product for some very limited use at a club, and I had no idea what to expect. Before using the program, I would use an audio mixer and some faders to keep everything in order, and I could do that using software, but this is a much better solution to not having to use all those faders and to still be able to use the software, but the software is the only thing I really want to use. The interface is easy to use, and has a VERY easy to find volume slider. The mixing capabilities are good, but it could be improved, and the software has a bug and sometimes does not allow me to get out of it, and it also does not mix the software and hardware inputs, so if I turn on the software input, it only comes out, and I cannot adjust the audio levels for both software and hardware inputs. I also want to mention I had problems with the software mixing my inputs and outputs, so when I was mixing tracks, I was not able to adjust levels on my sources and outputs, but this does not happen on my hardware mixer. If you are looking for a solid mixer, and you want to save space and want something that is easily transportable, this is not for you. But for the basic needs, there is nothing better out there, and I am very happy with this program. Ok.. gotta admit I was a bit sceptical about this one too. I downloaded this program and setup a trial version for a couple weeks to see how it worked. I used it for a song a day or so and then decided I needed something else. This software didn't suit my needs at all.
