Phosphorus (P) may be limited in acidic soils where nitrogen (N) fertilization increases nitrate-N (NO3-N) and has been hypothesized to increase P supply by causing phosphorus (P) to be released from the soil mineral surface. Atrazine is a widely used N-fertilizer, but there is no consensus on whether atrazine increases P mobilization from soil. The objectives of this study were to test the effects of atrazine on P release in 09e8f5149f

The purpose of this study was to evaluate the health-related quality of life (HRQoL) of children with epilepsy who attend a tertiary health centre. A random sample of 137 children (aged 4-17 years) with a diagnosis of epilepsy attended the outpatient epilepsy clinic at Royal Prince Alfred Hospital, Sydney, Australia, in 2003. The parents of the children completed a questionnaire, the Pediatric Quality of Life Inventory version 4.0, with some questions modified to reflect the Australian population. Children who required hospitalization in the previous 12 months were excluded. A total of 71.3% of children (102/137) had at least one seizure in the 4 weeks prior to completion of the questionnaire. The most commonly reported problems were seen in physical functioning and in school functioning. The limitations in physical functioning were due to seizure-related problems (33.3%) or to other conditions (19.4%) that may be associated with epilepsy. The most commonly reported problem in school functioning was reported by parents of children in the very severe range of intellectual disability (23.5%). The HRQ
