scripts, as well as add new ones of your own. Plain GUI designed for optimal readability Windows softwares are security friendly and come with security features at the very beginning. They offer proper security of user data and other information stored and shared with. Thus, users choose it to store the big files and important documents which are much valuable. The users usually install windows softwares like games, office applications, PDF reader and social media applications such as Facebook, twitter and so on. Generally, the installation process of such softwares is easy, but it may not be for any reasons and users should be extra care while installing it. While installing windows softwares, it is necessary to understand whether the software needs to be installed as local or on a network. Windows softwares are either local (installed on your PC) or network based (installed on a network server). A software that is installed on your PC is called a local software and one that is installed on a network server is called a network software. Network software needs a client to be installed on each PC that connects to it. However, every network software needs a client software to run on the client PCs, which is called as an installer. Windows softwares are not free from several types of errors. Any issue while installing windows softwares may lead to serious loss of data and after that the software becomes useless. Because, windows softwares are always updated from time to time and they usually include lots of system changes. Thus, it is necessary to install the latest version of windows softwares to get updated with new features. There are two types of issues that may occur while installing windows softwares: A. Issues while installing softwares on network B. Issues while installing softwares on a local PC

Issue #1. Issues while installing Softwares on network Softwares that are installed on a network share are more prone to such issues. A softwares installed on a network share is called as a network software. These are usually more prone to issues, because they are frequently downloaded from Internet. The files which are downloaded are corrupted by the time when the software is installed on the machine. It is because, the file which was downloaded from the Internet may not be absolutely same as the one you have downloaded. Issue #2. Issues while 09e8f5149f
