Power Trip: Tips for First Time Photographers If you want to be a photographer, then the first step is to learn some photography. If you want to learn photography, then the first step is to learn how to take pictures. Here are some helpful hints that should get you started. Always learn how to light your subject. This is the step that is rarely covered in other chapters, but good lighting is a prerequisite to your ability to shoot anything. You cannot afford to be a bad light photographer. To light your subjects, you need to use artificial light sources, just as you would when you are trying to photograph people. Sources of artificial lighting include flash, studio lighting, and off-camera flash. These are the most common sources of lighting, and you will get the most bang for your buck by learning how to use them. Take a good picture of yourself every day for a few weeks. This will allow you to see the photographic issues that you are making, and find ways to work around them. Ask a friend or family member to critique your work and show you where you need to go to improve. Once you have learned all of the basics, you should begin a shooting project every week. Shoot over 20 good pictures in a row until you have a library of better pictures than your current portfolio. Shoot everything you can, including the parts of your subject that you wouldn't normally shoot. This way, if you are to shoot your daughter, your brother, or your future wife, you are sure to be familiar with their face. Photoshop is a graphics program, but it also has photo editing capabilities. It has the ability to alter, distort, and change the color composition of your image. It comes with a variety of presets to help beginners and artists get started, as well as a large set of Photoshop Actions. Adobe offers a free trial of Photoshop Elements and Lightroom. These are excellent places to start practicing for the real thing. There is a 50-plus-hour tutorial available on how to use Photoshop Elements and Lightroom effectively. * * * ## Preparing your images After the images are taken, you have the option of downloading the images directly to your computer for further use or processing. The images can be imported to your computer by using the card reader that is included on the Canon cameras. The easiest way to save images is to transfer them to a memory card. This is done when you have

[Surgical treatment for tuberculosis of the larynx: indication and choice of operation]. To explore the indications and choice of operation for tuberculosis (TB) of the larynx. From 1998 to 2009, 14 cases of TB of the larynx underwent surgical management. There were 7 males and 7 females. The age ranged from 42 to 87 years. The presenting symptoms included hoarseness, throat pain, exophthalmos and/or respiratory distress. The lesion involved the hypopharynx in 9, the supraglottic area in 4, and the subglottic area in 1. All patients were analyzed for diagnosis and treatment. The operative procedures included cricothyroidotomy in 3, hemithyroidectomy with cricothyroidotomy in 4, hemithyroidectomy with total thyroidectomy in 3 and total laryngectomy in 2. The major indications of laryngeal tuberculosis are infection and respiratory and/or systemic failure. It must be differentiated from malignancy and granulomatous processes. The major choice of operation is cricothyroidotomy with or without preservation of the thyroid. New York City is home to over 2.6 million people. Along with those people are over one million dogs. With so many canines living in the city, it's no surprise that the island of Manhattan alone has over 11,000 dog-friendly establishments. To help owners keep their pets safe, the NYC Department of Health has created a list of the top 50 best animal-friendly establishments in NYC! These picks were made using these criteria: 25-foot interior walking distance (eligible for the Roo Run), dog walking distance, roofed, small dogs allowed, no shelters, pet supply stores, grooming services, clean and well maintained; larger dogs and pets with special needs allowed. To view the full list, click here. Most owners can agree that the best way to enjoy their dog is at the beach, but a few tips can make the trip more comfortable. Sun, sand, surf, and sea salt all make for an exhilarating vacation, but it's important to keep your pup comfortable during this adventure. In the rare case that your pup is suffering from heatstroke, take him to the nearest vet for immediate treatment. If your dog is having a seizure, contact the owner immediately; heatstroke is one of the most common causes of

Wii New PlayControl Advice I think I have found the best way to get the Wii working with the playcontrol but I'm not really sure how to get it to work. I've read somewhere that I need to turn the volume on the TV down to 0 and increase the volume on the Wii (Is that right?) but the only way I can currently get it to work is if I have the volume on the TV at a high level and the volume on the Wii at a low level. Does anyone know how to get it to work the correct way? I'm not quite sure what you've done so far. I am a little confused. As I understand it, you have to: 1) turn the volume on the TV down to 0 and increase the volume on the Wii (Is that right?) 2) use the wheel on the right of the Wii remote to adjust the volume of the TV 3) turn the volume on the TV back up to the maximum level and the Wii remote volume back down to the maximum level 4) hold down L, A, or the HOME button on the remote, and press Z (to sync) or press C (to activate a GameCube). I'm not quite sure if that is right. However, this is what I have done with my Wii. I should say that I have my sound on the TV down to 0 except for games, which seem to keep the sound at max level. Click to expand... Thanks for the info. I don't know how I managed to get it to work from scratch and then be unable to get it work from the start to get it to work. The reason why I was unable to get it to work from the start was because it didn't seem to know what the volume was on the TV. So when I adjusted it to be at max level it didn't seem to have changed the TV from the wrong side to the right side (although I don't know if it was the wrong side or the right side). Anyway, I have been working on it for over three weeks and I can't figure out how to get it to work. I've also been trying to figure out how to connect my Wii with my PLEX library. I am unable to. *To make it easier for the installation the installation
