ObjectARX ObjectARX is a programming language that can be used to interface with AutoCAD. ObjectARX can be used to create tools, scripts, macros, procedures, and custom user interfaces for AutoCAD. It is available free of charge to registered users of AutoCAD LT, 2012 or 2013. For other versions, ObjectARX is available as an add-on or plug-in. The language is similar to Visual Basic, but it has object-oriented programming features. It is fully compliant with the ObjectARX Open Studio XML format specification and the ObjectARX XML Schema for Dynamic Objects. ObjectARX is currently a proprietary programming language, but was meant to be a fully open-source programming language. AutoCAD 2010 introduced ObjectARX scripting through two APIs, ObjectARX and AutoLISP. ObjectARX API In 2010, AutoCAD introduced the ability to make custom plugins (macros or modules) using the ObjectARX API. This API is currently used for the following modules:

these functions, ObjectARX APIs can be used to run external applications (such as Microsoft Excel) or launch 3D Studio Max. The ObjectARX API is used by: visual programming through the Visual LISP and Visual Basic dialects. In Visual LISP, most functions can be written in standard LISP syntax. ObjectARX and AutoLISP
