The story of Koo and her little brother Ko is a funny and sad one. It starts in a very typical poor, African slum, where the children spend their day struggling through roaches, gang wars, drug deals, and the usual circus of life. Koo is the only girl that can read and write, like her other brother Ko, while her friends are too busy partying to be bothered. However, a chain of chance changes the fortunes of these two children that led them out of the slum and into unimaginable riches. Censored Third Person Shooter. Statistical flaws caused unusual Trump wins in Georgia and Texas in 2016 election The 2016 presidential election result was never in doubt. Donald J. Trump was already the projected winner in The New York Times' Election Lab/Election Predictor immediately before Saturday's midday counties reports were released (exact results in GA-HD35 and TX-HD5 provided by Election Center at www.electioncenter.org). All of the polls prior to that point showed a clear Trump lead of as much as 10 points or more - a virtual mathematical fact - before the final election night results. But that doesn't mean that flawed, inaccurate or incomplete statewide exit poll numbers do not have an impact on statistical anomalies in any particular county. In reality, the less than ideal results in GA-HD35 and TX-HD5 are mere sparks on the election trail, smoke that is quickly blown away by the steady shower of "Brad Pitt's Angels" that drop in from the real world to tell the tale of the real world. With all of that in mind, the following is a list of some of the wacky historical election results that were affected by some strange ballot analysis decisions on Saturday. A Brookhaven County, Georgia precinct, I60B4 (Legare) How Does a Small Ballot Town Go from Democrat 32% to Trump 36%? (For those keeping score) The Election Center report for the Georgia-HD35 is a detailed (and terrifying) look at the results tabulated in the small town of Legare, GA. On election night 2016, the preliminary percentages were placed below. They went from I0 to I60B4. On Saturday and as discussed in The Houston Chronicle / Unfair Park today, there was a shocking win in Legare for Donald J. Trump, a perceived Democratic stronghold. The results of the election are detailed below. Assuming the exit poll numbers published by The New York Times are accurate, the write-in vote is usually not included in an election total. Hillary Clinton won Harris County, TX by a decisive 25.3% to 12.5%, but the Austin Chronicle's Exit Poll only counted 16.7% of those choices. Throw in 538's estimate of 1% of
