A big thanks to everyone who read this extremely long read, please read the full scale preview on NGN.com/Reporter, and don't forget to write a review and get your favourite game to your favourite platform, but yeah, I guess I'll see you all in game sometime or another. Let's go! The Graphics The graphics are pretty cool actually. It's like nearly everything else these days is like a cross between Final Fantasy VII and Kingdom Hearts. The difference is obvious. Kingdom Hearts' art style is really good, but the graphics are still rather average. Final Fantasy VII does not suck. The story The story is done as a free to play, open ended experience. While I have no idea what this actually means, I'm assuming the story will get worse the more you play (but good stories usually get worse the more you play, so I guess it's alright). The combat Combat is hard. It's not like Final Fantasy XIII's combat system where you use regular attacks and skills. There are two: Regular attacks - Usually not a lot. Many basic attacks. Special moves - You use "f" to launch an area attack. You can use your magic during combat. The number of spells you can use depends on your level. Spells are not like spells in the Final Fantasy series. They are more like elements; Kind of like magic you could use for making a pizza, you need a oven and raw materials, but you won't end up with much pizza if you do the math right. The only difference is that these aren't free to use. They are quite expensive though, making the combat a lot like Final Fantasy XIII's combat. The characters My main character has black hair. I'm not really sure what it means, but it's there. The enemies They're pretty cool as well, but the enemy system is somewhat different. You're not meant to defeat them, it's just to beat them up for fun. The type of enemy also changes, depending on your level, skill, and magic. You have to level up in order to
