Side. It was released on October 31, 2006 by Sumthing Else Music Works. This is the soundtrack to BULLETPROOF: Original Motion Picture Soundtrack, a film based on the penultimate novel in the Dark Series, with music by Bulletproof's original composer, David Newman. The film has a score by David Newman as well, but is not officially considered part of the Dark Series, which was continued by Bulletproof. The Dark Series (Shot) Book 1: Artist Statement This soundtrack presents an instrumental score by David Newman for BULLETPROOF: Original Motion Picture Soundtrack. David and I had been talking for a few years about making a film score together with a view to collaborating on one of his projects. Originally I planned to produce a song for the film and possibly one or two songs for the soundtrack album as an accompaniment to some of the film's relatively exotic locations. The original idea was to produce an atmosphere that could thrill like a film-based concept album. In the midst of all the media-affirming audience expectations of contemporary composers, I found it difficult to detach myself enough to let the music be what it wanted to be and not an accompaniment to what people wanted the music to be. So I started just making the music and hoped that it would make itself heard. The soundtrack is my most successful project in this regard. The film has a dream-like quality as a result of the music. I've been able to avoid any patterns that might sound dominant, so the actual texture of the composition is the expressive content of it. The soundtrack, the ideas and the music have now changed fundamentally and I've started to seriously look at the project in a different way. All the essentials I had set out to explore in the original project at one time no longer appear important to me. Summary To take an immediate example, the following changes in approach have resulted: I now believe that there are as many musical styles as there are human cultures. The 'Bard Street' of New Orleans in the time of jazz is the period equivalent of the extreme extent of agility and intricate memory-scored multitrack sound in film scoring being into the 80's. By the time I was working with David Newman on this project, we were both laughing at the notion of 'Pop' being
