The Land of Rea is a barren land. A land ruled by the Order of Morta, a group of fanatic warriors sworn to suppress free will. Their sole aim is to fight and kill each other to strengthen their once powerful empire. But this land is also home to many different races, tribes and societies that have their own rules and hierarchies. And in this forgotten world lies the Blight—a quiet town filled with all kinds of colorful characters and harmless fables, a place where nothing holds you in and not even the Order itself can punish you. NOTE: Vita Game Works requires a PlayStation®3 system (sold separately). PlayStation®4 game and controller required (sold separately). English is the only language option. The People of Rea The Rean Confederation had split into several different countries, each with its own separate government and culture. The capital city of Rea, Arianas, is a peaceful place with citizens who follow the gentle philosophy of Non-Rea. The second largest country, Arushan, is a curious combination of ancient city ruins and high-tech wild west. The third largest, Reoran, has a rich mixture of classic Gothic architecture and a modern, industrial edge. The Rise of the Order of Morta The Order of Morta was born centuries ago, from the bloodiest conflict of the Cold War, when two German states came into open hostility with each other. Soon thousands of soldiers were killed on both sides, but the war never really started. In a last desperate move, the Order of Morta was sent to bring the two countries into one single state under their rule, using all available means to corrupt and bend the people in their favor. It was a cruel plan that was never meant to become reality, but as the Order took more and more power and influence, it started to build the infrastructure to make it a reality. Eventually, with the help of a foreign nation, it became the Empire of Morta. This is a land of secrets and knowledge, of the ways of the world— This is a land of magnificent armies and glorious warriors, of pirates, murderers and traitors, of the creators of beautiful melodies and deadly gramophone records, of computers and demons, of the miraculous and the mundane. This is a land of intrigues and mysteries, of grey skies and turbulent seas, a fertile land in the heart of

The game is a realistic simulator with the gameplay and graphic options taken from the real Spectra. The game incorporates full on-board seatbelts, driver/coach and passenger screen lights, working ticket machine, wipers, engine start-stop button and gauge options. You can also configure the interior with your own graphics, or use the included set of templates to modify a standard bus. The game contains a 2,240 route, comprising long-distance routes plus high-frequency urban routes throughout the UK and Ireland. The routes are available for you to drive, and when you're finished exploring the routes, you can publish them to the web for others to use. Features: * Flythrough of fully operational DAF D851 or D854 gearbox allowing for high torque during acceleration and easy gearshifts. D851 is 2.92:1 whilst D854 is 3.65:1. This is more than enough for the Spectra engine, providing plenty of performance and fine gearshifts that feel like you are driving a rally car. * Full cab assault screen with unique design - described by Northern Counties as the 'ultimate' front end. * Detailed engine sounds recorded from preserved ex-Wilts & Dorset bus 3127 (L127 ELJ) - Many thanks to owner, Darren Johnson, for reaching out to me * 9 bundled liveries * Color selection for the roof/windows, door trims, standard and optional wheel trim sets * Full seatbelt options: driver's, driver/coach, passenger and mesh depending on the chosen graphics * 9 route templates to drive on 2,240 route database * Stationary bus and bus stops include custom graphics, route point flags, route maps and local stop information * Detailed coach interior with working warning lights, faults, switches and gauges * Roadworks and service stations include custom graphics and route point flags * Passenger animations * Complete dashboard set, including speedometer, fuel gauge, clock and trip information * Large selection of accessories including trees, shops, signs, house numbers, route maps, bus stops and luggage trolleys * Full coach interior mobility options including opening and closing of doors and sunroofs * Ticket machine includes 'put away' and 'customer exit' buttons * Engine start-stop option * Custom rear screen options including set of lights, mood lighting, external rear view mirror,

DEATH OVER TEQUILA The jevite plants seen at the Tequila Distillery are grown on the slopes of Parque Ecológico Jacarandás and are used for jeviza (raw sugarcane juice) though they are also the main source of shade and produce for many local farm cows. The benefit to the jevite is that as the sugar reaches maturity, and the plant dies, it leaves behind a large amount of potash, potassium and nitrogen. The distillery manufactures tequilas like Patron, Casas Grandes and Cointreau, as well as tequila, agave nectar, ag

The mysterious Great People of the Earth, who live in the shadows of history, have seen much change in these lands over the years. Today, the Honshu of Japan and the Korean Peninsula are mere sketchy shapes on the map, while the Mongols are the dominant force of Asia. The people of Japan have seen their land transform from a wilderness inhabited by monsters to a land of wonder and enlightenment - the Edo Period. The people of Korea and Mongolia have seen their lands become the playground of great empires in the Joseon and Yuan Dynasties. In the mountains of China, the mysterious Great People have observed the change from archaic Chinese civilization to a more prosperous and dynamic state. The Organs of the Great People are making their move, and now are moving across the lands of the Far East, in order to find a new place for their universal rule. The time has come to bring new destinies to these lands. P5. The game package includes both a) the map and b) the Music CD. was reasonable. The record shows that Haworth was unaware, prior to engaging in such conduct, of the financial status of LJI and of the indebtedness of the other four shareholders of LJI. Her conduct was based upon the word of the president of LJI, G. Herbert Hart, that the LJI pension plan would be favorably considered as the record owner of the realty. Such reliance was in good faith. Further, a business trust such as LJI, is an "artificial entity" which does not enjoy the same protection for its proprietary rights as the natural person. Dunbar Corp. v. Hahn, 251 F. Supp. 607, 614 (S.D. N.Y. 1966). It is obvious that one who engages in business transactions on the basis of erroneous information given him by another must be prepared to accept the consequences of his acts. Trotter v. Devlin, 191 Ark. 170, 84 S.W.2d 74 (1935). We find, from all the facts, that Haworth's conduct was free from any taint of fraud or overreaching. II. Did the chancellor commit manifest error in finding no damage to LJI? LJI contends that the chancellor committed manifest error in finding "no damage" to LJI as a result of Haworth's wrongful conduct. Haworth counters with the argument that damage is a necessary element of
