The Cutline Filter Cracked Accounts is a Photoshop plug-in which is intended for use on continuous tone gray scale images. The best results are seen with photos or illustrations with gradient blends. Cutline screens are a combination of line/dot screens. A standard line screen represents gray tones in a photo or illustration by varying the thickness of black lines on a white background. However, in the Cutline screen, as lines get thicker, angles "cuts" appear in the lines, which cause them to break into dots. The result is an effect that emulates the classic old world engraving and woodcut techniques. Here are some key features of "Cutline Filter": Engraves selected parts of a grayscale photograph or illustration in 10 to 35 lpi. range, customizable to higher or lower settings. Uses a unique directional engraving tool called the Stamper to set angles and curvature of engraved lines. The Cutline Plug-In filters are a completely new filter set for Adobe Photoshop. They are a unique combination of line screens (stampers), embossing and cutting technology developed by Arthur Reimelt. Our objective was to let the user change the level of sharpness of a line screen on a continuous tone image. To this end, the filter offers 10 to 35 lines per inch in a large range from smooth to coarse. These settings allow the user to create an effect that will resemble the look of old engraving, woodcuts or lithographs. Therefore, this filter is made for users whose images usually have a continuous tone color combination. We assume you have an image of good quality and you want to achieve nice crisp engraving effects and that is why we selected it for a good test of this filter. You will certainly have the impression that this filter is able to create a special visual effect. This filter will improve the results of "Color Sketch" filter which is a good companion for it because it enhances the appearance of subtle gradations in your image. The filter offers a variety of tools which allow you to create an interesting engraving effect: A directional stamping tool called Stamper. A curved and ellipse shaped stamping tool called the Stamper. A stamping tool that lets you set the angles and curvature of engraved lines. A tool that visually highlights the selected lines and parts of a continuous tone image. A tool that lets you choose which images and areas are highlighted and how intense the effect will be.
