Q: jquery click function only runs once on a button I have a very basic jQuery function, where i want to do a loop (in this example, when the user clicks the button, the text changes) and then have the function re run when they click the same button. I'm using the following function: `$(document).ready(function () { $('#thebutton').click(function () { //alert('Value of button 1'); $('#thebutton').text('button 1'); //alert('Value of button 1'); }); });` The first alert is showing the correct value so the b7e8fdf5c8

It is a calculator, which allows you to:

- Calculate projections of maximum and minimum possible scores for the given batsman, bowlers. The projected maximum and minimum scores for the bowlers can also be calculated using projections. The projections are based on the 3rd test match performance of a user.
- Calculate runs per over (RPO), balls per over (BPO), balls per dismiss (BPD).
- Calculate runs per over bowled (ROPB) and balls per over bowled (ROPB).
- Calculate batting average, runs per 100 balls (RBI), runs per 50 balls (R50), runs per four 50s (R4).
- Calculate career average (CRA), highest individual score for a user and other useful statistics for the user. An example calculation for the minimum and maximum possible scores, using the projection factor of 3, for a batsman with an ODI career score of 1000 at an SR of 100 is: (Minimum scores) $8000 \times 3 = 24000$
