Calculate the date from adding or subtracting months, days, hours or minutes. The date was introduced in ancient days by Babylonians and Egyptians. As we know, the Gregorian calendar was introduced in 1582 to standardize the date and to replace the Julian calendar. This new calendar was introduced by Pope Gregory XIII on March 20, 1582. It was adapted in 1752 and 1753 by Pope Clement XII and in 1753 and 1754 by Pope Benedict XIV. The New Style Gregorian calendar was adopted in 1806 in Austria, the German lands and Switzerland. After World War II in 1945, the Gregorian calendar was adopted in Europe, North America, Asia and Latin America. The History of the Julian and Gregorian Calendars The Julian calendar was introduced by Julius Caesar in 45 BC. The Julian calendar is composed of 365 days. It was introduced so that every fourth year (every four years plus one day) would be a leap year. During the Middle Ages, the Julian calendar was mostly used, but in 1582 Pope Gregory XIII introduced the Gregorian calendar. The Gregorian calendar introduces 13 days to January, February, March, April, May and November. It was introduced to replace the Julian calendar. In 1752, Pope Clement XIII introduced the reforms of the calendar. The new calendar was introduced at the end of June. The new reforms of the calendar was adopted by imperial orders on February 19, 1753. In 1753, the reforms of the calendar were adopted in all of the Roman Catholic countries. The reform was adopted by imperial orders on September 2, 1753. This was declared by Pope Gregory XIV on September 22, 1754. The Julian calendar used the current date as the first of January. The Gregorian calendar used the date in the current year as the first of January. The Julian calendar is known as Common year or the year of 12 months. In the Gregorian calendar, the months are divided in 10 months and 2 additional weeks. Future, History of the Julian Calendar, Calendar in the Renaissance The Pope is the head of the Catholic church and has the right to change the date and calendar every 100 years. This is why changes were not made every four years. Under the rule of Pope Gregory XIII, in the 17th century, the date and the calendar were changed. There is no standard date that can be used as the first day of the year. This is the reason why the date of today can be counted from January 1, 1500
