Epilepsy is the third most common neurological disorder with a prevalence of 0.5% in the western world. Approximately 3.4 million people in the USA have been diagnosed with epilepsy according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. However, the reported incidence rates in the published literature are much lower, suggesting that the true incidence of epilepsy may be underestimated. This study was conducted to determine whether patients with epilepsy, admitted to the emergency department of a large hospital in the western part of the USA, were more likely to be discharged from the hospital to an inpatient psychiatric facility rather than to a medically appropriate rehabilitation facility. We retrospectively assessed cases of inpatient epilepsy consultations and their corresponding discharge diagnoses by reviewing charts from 1 January 2002 to 31 December 2005. This study was performed in an urban setting with a population of 1.2 million. The study sample consisted of 350 patients with a median age of 39 years (range 16-92 years). In total, 57.5% of patients were discharged to inpatient psychiatric facilities and 37.2% of patients were discharged to inpatient rehabilitation facilities. The proportion of patients discharged to a psychiatric hospital was strongly associated with having a primary diagnosis of a psychiatric illness ( $X(2)=24.06$ ,  $P<0.001$ ). Tiananmen Square 30th anniversary revision the revised version The recent August 4th anniversary on the 30th anniversary of the brutal crackdown in Tiananmen Square is a critical time for the Chinese government's historical revisionism work, which will also continue 6d1f23a050
