I know this has already been discussed elsewhere, but I feel this is an important issue that needs to be answered, and just doesn't seem to have come up before. It's obvious that we should be debating the pros and cons of stored procedure-based versus RDBMS specific ORMs. However, the real argument of the ORM as a concept is just getting started. We could be debating this concept for a long time if we only migrated questions about specific ORM technologies like hbm or em. Is it worth it to migrate a "Which ORM technology should I use?" question to SO? Is this too broad or unclear? Are there any arguments that would be lost or gained by migrating a question like this? A: I can't imagine that this is going to be a very popular topic, so I'm going to basically just dismiss it. :) We're not actually looking for help in migrating questions to this sort of site. If someone asks a question like this, we usually just take it and answer it. So, that's pretty much that. Feel free to turn me down, but it's hard to see any benefit. No. 1-008 (Law. Co. of Va.1983). It is entirely unclear why the Legislature would have dictated that the case 6d1f23a050
