The incidence of hepatocellular carcinoma is highest in East Asia and the Middle East. Although the etiology of this cancer is still unknown, the association between HCV infection and hepatocellular carcinoma has been well established. The cellular immune response that is mediated by CD4(+) and CD8(+) T cells is one of the important immune responses against HCV infection. According to the results of our previous studies, the clearance of HCV is most effective in the early stage of infection, and the protective effects are associated with the Th1 immune response and cytotoxic T lymphocytes. However, the overall pathogenesis of HC
